YANKEES ADVANCE OVER WIDE FRONT

LONDON, Nov. 7.—American troops advanced on a wide front astride the Meuse yesterday, the American official communique announced today.

West of the river, the Americans captured Raucourt, Bulson and Harcourt, carrying their lines to within less than four miles of Sedan.

Along the east bank, they advanced about two miles and a half, occupying Murvaux, Fontaines and Hill 284.

"East of the Meuse, we advanced four kilometers and captured Murvaux, Hill 284 and Fontaines," the statement said.

"West of the river, we captured Raucourt, Bulson and Harcourt."

The French have leaped forward at least five miles on their left flank, clearing the forests of Nouvion and Regnaval, and bearing down upon Hirson, from which they are now seven miles distant. Capture of this town will close the northern exit for the German armies southwest of the Ardennes, completing their entrapment.

At the point where the French line joins with that of the American first army, French cavalry has gone into action again, and is reported to be approaching the Meuse between Sedan and Metz.

The Germans are reported to be withdrawing north of Sedan. East of the Meuse, American observers report the enemy in rout at several points. Capture of Montmedy seems imminent.

The Americans speeded up their advance astride the Meuse today. They are within four miles of Sedan, and are rapidly approaching that historic city. The Germans are reported to be withdrawing north of Sedan.

East of the Meuse, American observers report the enemy in rout at several points. Capture of Montmedy seems imminent.

The French, with Italian troops co-operating, went forward between the Sambre and the Bar rivers. They captured the important town of Verwin on the road to Hirson, and also took Hontcort, Bethel and Attigny. The Aisne has been completely passed.

On the French left, the western outskirts of the Nouvion and Regnaval forests were reached.

The Italians crossed the Hurtal river and stormed Rozoy-Serre. North of the Aisne, French troops reached the general line of La Harde, the southern outskirts of Chaumont-Porcien, Doumly, Begny, Harbigny and the railway between Bethel and Liart. On the right, the French advanced to the general line of Vauzelles, Auboncourt, Sorey, Battemont, Ecerdail, Guincourt, Jonval and Creny-la-Vallée, passing nearly four miles north of Attigny. Where the American and French lines joined, the latter captured Vendresse and pushed northward, storming Omicourt.

The British, attacking between the Scheldt and the Sambre, on the French left, progressed on the whole front. They captured Aulnoye, Leval, Cartignies and Marbaix, and approached closer to Ilavay.

On the French right, the Americans advanced west of the Meuse to within four miles of Sedan, occupying Bulson, Harcourt and Raucourt. They reached the outskirts of Mouson. East of the Meuse, they captured Fontaines and Murvaux and reached Harcourt, passing Villon.

The Italian war office announced that the movements provided for in the Austrian armistice are being rapidly carried out.

In the Balkans, the Serbs have executed all their intended movements for repatriation of their people. Great numbers of Serb prisoners are returning from Hungary.

The percentage of substitutes used in wheat bread eaten in the United States and other allied countries will be diminished by January 1 if the plans of the inter-allied food council in London are realized, according to the United States Food Administration today.

"The Austrian armistice must result in greater safety of the Mediterranean Sea routes and the increased accessibility of the Indian and Australian wheat supplies, even if Germany does not quit the war," states a bulletin. This should make sufficient wheat from these countries available during the winter to reduce the amount of substitution in the bread of the allied nations and allow the substitutes now imported to be used for dairy feed.

ALLIES ADVANCE ON 150-MILE LINE

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The allies, continuing their pressure on the 150-mile front from the Scheldt to the Meuse, made important advances all along the line yesterday.

The greatest progress was made by the French, in the center. They shoved ahead nearly eight miles, carrying their lines to within that distance of Harson, which constitutes the northern gateway for the German armies rapidly being trapped along the southwestern edge of the Ardennes. A similar advance today may see the practical isolation of these enemy forces completed, as the Americans have virtually closed the eastern exit in the Meuse region.

The French, with Italian troops co-operating, went forward between the Sambre and the Bar rivers. They captured the important town of Verwin on the road to Hirson, and also took Hontcort, Bethel and Attigny. The Aisne has been completely passed.

CAPT. E. ALMOND WOUNDED, REPORT

Capt. Edward M. Almond, commander of Company A, Twelfth Machine Gun Battalion now in France, has been wounded in action, according to word received today by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Almond, of 310 East Capitol street.

This is the second time that Captain Almond has been wounded in the last three months, having received his first wound when the Americans began the great drive on July 18.

Captain Almond is twenty-six years old, and was born in Luray, Va., but his parents later moved to Orange, Va., where he attended the Orange High School and graduated at the head of his class.

In 1910, he was sent to Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Va., where he became a lieutenant of cadets. He studied electrical engineering there and graduated with honors in 1914, and came here to live with his parents, who moved here six years ago.

After a few months vacation, Captain Almond began studying for a second lieutenant's commission at the War College here. He satisfactorily passed the required examinations, and received his commission in 1915. He was ordered to report for duty in Anniston, Ala. Captain Almond was promoted to be a captain in the Twelfth Machine Gun Battalion just before he sailed for France in 1917.

Captain Almond's wife is now staying in Anniston, Ala. His sister, Miss Julia Almond, is a yeoman at the Navy Department here.
